27 YEARS GROWING VEGETABLE PLANTS

PHONE 2371, REBECCA

---

I am growing well over one hundred acres of vegetable plants this year. I plant the best seed obtainable. Thousands of Market and home gardeners use my plants from year to year.

If you live East of the Rockies, I have many satisfied customers in your neighborhood.

CARE OF PLANTS

It is highly essential that plants be shipped and transplanted as rapidly as possible. Do not hold plants any longer than is absolutely necessary.

If plants have to be held in storage before transplanting, keep in cool place. Avoid buildings with metal roof where temperature may rise rapidly.

Remove one or more bundles of plants from each crate or basket in order to give more ventilation. If moss around roots have become dry, dip in water for a few minutes,—long enough for the moss to become wet, but no longer. Under no circumstances should plants be left standing in water.

TOMATO PLANTS

I am growing the following varieties of tomato plants this season:

RUTGERS, one of the most popular Tomato, wilt resistant variety. Vigorous grower with plenty of foliage. Big yielder of fine quality, globular shaped, bright red fruit, good for canning, very popular with market gardeners. Adapted to all sections of U. S. Truly an all purpose Tomato.

STOKESDALE, very early, fruit deep red globe shape, wilt resistant, heavy yielder, becoming very popular.

BREAK O DAY, real early, open growth, good variety for short growing season.

MARGLOBE, wilt resistant, very popular, well known all over United States.

GREATER BALTIMORE, excellent canning variety, a good general crop tomato, not wilt resistant.

BONNY BEST, widely used as a home garden variety.
EARLIANA, One of the earliest kinds, deep red fruit.

(Ready April 15, forward.)

Sweet Potatoes do best on loose loamy soil. Use good supply of commercial fertilizer, with high per cent in potash. Plant in rows three feet wide, fifteen or eighteen inches in drill, plant up on bed, keep them well up on bed through season. It takes ten or twelve thousand to set out an acre.

A few words about my sweet potato plants. I have bred these varieties for early maturity. My seed stock has been under the supervision of the State Board of Entomology for Twenty Years. My fields are inspected before gathering time. The tubers are inspected in storage. Then another just before being pulled. I have many customers in extreme northern states that report large yields. If you have the space, try some Sweet Potatoes this year.

TOMATO PLANTS FOR TRANSPLANTING

3 1-2 to 4 Inch Plants for transplanting to flats and cold frames. I sell many thousand plants for this purpose each year. Will have the following varieties: Marglobe, Rutgers, Pritchard, Stone, Bonny Best. $3.50 per 1000. No less than 1000 shipped. (Ready April 10, forward.)

TOMATO PLANTS, BLOOMING SIZE

I will have large blooming size tomato plants in the following varieties this year: Marglobe, Rutgers, Stone, Bonny Best.

Usually blooming size tomato plants are ready to ship the latter part of April. Weather conditions play a great part in the growth of these plants, therefore, I can't tell the exact date they will be ready.

Your order will be shipped as near date you want them as possible. Remember plants make a lot of progress here in a few days and by holding your order a short while you will get much better plants if plants are not quite ready when your order comes.

Have always been able to fill orders on these plants all the month of May and some times in April 15 to 20, on through season. Postpaid, 100, $2.00; 200, $2.75. Express Collect, 500, $3.75; $7.00 per 1000.
